Christmas Cheer for Poor.

Twenty-eight baskets were distributed this year by the Danielson Benevolent society to needy families and persons in Danielson. Each basket was well filled with good things that will enter into the preparation of excellent Christmas dinners today.

Remodeled into Clubhouse.

over during the early hours of Friday morning. They broke into the office of the Dayville company and carried off several dollars' worth of cash and a few other things.

The undersigned corner within and for the county of Windham having received a verdict in the case of Sylvia Briere and Rose Bissonnette had been killed at the second crossing a few days ago.

In the case of the death of Charles W. Greene, engineer, and all three were instantly killed. I find that said engineer on approaching said crossing and the one just below gave the usual signals of two long blasts and a short blast.

And the driver of the engine reached the crossing, continued to drive across. I also find that as Mr. Briere approached the crossing, he saw the engine and the crossing, continued to drive across. I also find that as Mr. Briere approached the crossing, he saw the engine and the crossing, continued to drive across.

Those in charge of the work of the Danielson Benevolent society in Danielson this Christmas season were well pleased over the generous manner in which the appeal for gifts for Christmas dinners for the needy of Danielson was responded to.

It was also satisfaction in the discovery that the needy were less numerous this year than last year.

Out of the 25 families remembered with Christmas baskets were about eight consisting of one person only and in these cases the gifts were given to the needy.

The donations of vegetables this year were generous and of splendid quality, better, on the whole, than the contributions of the past year.

The committee received all that was needed for the Christmas dinners.

The Benevolent society is delighted with the action of the Danielson Firemen's association in voting from the treasury of the organization $25 to be turned over to the Benevolent society for use in relieving cases of need during the Christmas season.
